A Child Went Forth Janine Chappell Carr, 1999 I am convinced Children love to learn regardless of their circumstances So says the author of this inspirational new book But when those circumstances include large classrooms of multiethnic multilingual children from low socioeconomic backgrounds not to mention the difficulties of controversial state curriculum frameworks and restricted budgets how can a teacher effectively nurture that inherent love of learning This was the dilemma Janine Chappell Carr confronted teaching language arts to first and second graders in southern California The solutions she discovered may surprise you Utilizing a blend of meaningful and interesting reading material early writing practice speaking and explicit instruction Carr disproves the media s insistence that American schools are typically ill equipped to teach children from low income neighborhoods She describes her methods in great and practical detail everything from getting the classroom ready for a new school year to developing strategies for shared reading to establishing a writing studio Samples of student work plus narratives of how bilingual and English only students rise to new challenges offer vivid illustrations of Carr's methods in action. Assessment practices for closely monitoring students' progress are outlined as well as novel ways to implement and maintain diagnostic and student-kept literacy portfolios. As a practical text, A Child Went Forth presents a thorough and realistic portrayal of life in an equitable classroom. As an inspirational one, it celebrates the voices of young learners and presents a wonderful model for success.

Family Involvement in Children's Education Janie Funkhouser, 1999-02. Describes how some schools and their communities have overcome key barriers, finding the time, increasing their information about each other, bridging school-family differences, improving schools, and tapping external supports to strengthen school-family partnerships. Successful partnerships require the sustained mutual collaboration and support of school staffs and families at home and at school. Business or community groups can also help schools and families to work together. This book is based on case studies of 20 successful education programs around the country. They include elementary and secondary schools and districtwide programs.

First-class Teacher Lee Canter, 1998. Hundreds of tips and strategies help new teachers not only survive but thrive in their first year. This book answers the new teacher's need for solutions. It offers practical suggestions, strategies, and ideas that will help those new to teaching or returning to the profession feel confident in the classroom.

Family Involvement in Children's Education Janie E. Funkhouser, Miriam R. Gonzales, 1997. Schools that are most successful in engaging parents and other family members in support of their children's learning look beyond traditional definitions of parent involvement: parent-teacher organizations or signing report cards to a broader conception of supporting families in activities outside of school that can encourage their children's learning. This idea book is intended to assist educators, parents, and policy makers as they develop school-family partnerships, identifying and describing successful strategies used by 20 local Title I programs. Following an executive summary, the book notes resources for involving families in education, includes research supporting such partnerships, and describes how Title I encourages partnerships. Next, the book describes successful local approaches to family involvement in education, organized around strategies for overcoming common barriers to family involvement, including: 1) overcoming time and resource constraints; 2) providing information and training to parents and school staff; 3) restructuring schools to support family involvement; 4) bridging school-family differences; and 5) tapping external supports for partnerships. Finally, the book presents conclusions about establishing and sustaining partnerships, noting that at the same time that successful partnerships share accountability, specific stakeholders must assume individual responsibility and that those schools that succeed in involving large numbers of parents invest energy in finding solutions for problems, not excuses. Four appendices present profiles of 10 successful partnerships, descriptions in table format of 20 successful local approaches, contact information for profiled partnership programs, and resources for building successful partnerships. Contains 13 references.
