

Surface Weather Map Showing Storm System in the Eastern United States

Warm air advection occurs where the wind flows across isobars from higher pressure (values to lower isobars) values. This is because air is being transported towards a lower location by the movement of air. Based on this the low above, you would expect _____ of the isobars to be rising, cold air advection occurs where the wind flows across the isobars from lower (colder) values to higher (warmer) values. Thus, colder air being transported by the wind to a warmer location produces falling temperatures.

Based on wind directions and the isobars pattern on the Figure 2 map, determine the type of air advection (warm or cold) that would be occurring at each station.
