

Your Genesis Bow

The Genesis bow you purchased is different from other bows because it accommodates all draw lengths from 27" to 32". This means that people of all sizes can shoot the same bow without adjustment. Most especially for the beginning archer, the Genesis bow uses the DFR to draw and it's very easy to shoot.

The Genesis bow is made from solid lightweight, machined aluminum, and the limbs are formed from a light strength, fiber reinforced composite. It is a significant bow and is filled with a high-tech finishing and double coated grip.

Genesis Specifications

Single cam compound bow
Draw weight: 18 to 20 lbs.
Limb length: 41 1/2" (31")
Axle to axle length: 34"
Stroke length: 27"
String length: 64 1/2"
Front cable length: 24"

Genesis Features

DFR

The draw length adjuster on your Genesis bow is machined from 8881-19 aluminum. This feature is engineered to provide the Genesis bow all-terrain motion while being both extremely durable and very lightweight.

Side Wheel

The side wheel is located on the upper limb of the bow. The main function of the side wheel is to transfer stored energy from the bow limbs back through the string to the arrow in a smooth and rapid fashion. The drawings in the side wheel are made of a very low friction synthetic material which makes require lubrication.

Limb and Limb Bolt

The limbs on your Genesis bow are attached to each end of the bow. They store the potential energy you put into the bow and the string is released. At the moment of release, the stored potential energy is transferred into energy in motion, and the arrow is propelled toward the target. The limb bolts, which are fixed to the bow and are also used to adjust the draw weight of your bow (using a DFR bow stretch, the limb bolts can be turned in a counter-clockwise direction to decrease the percentage of the bow to a minimum of 10 lbs. Turning the limb bolts clockwise will return the bow to its maximum of 20 lbs. One full turn equals approximately 1 lbs. of draw weight. The limb bolts on each limb should always be turned the same number of turns when adjusting bow percentage.

Genesis Reaction System

Your Genesis bow features single cam design. The elliptical shaped cam allows the bow to maintain the air percentage through out the draw cycle. The extended limb end of the cam creates and guides the bow string, when the bowstring is released the cam creates a forward effect, which results in a faster arrow while maintaining low mass.

DGR

The double, machined grip on your Genesis bow is specially designed to fit the contours of your hand, providing both comfort and consistency.

Arrow Rest

Your Genesis bow comes with a flipper style arrow rest (made by Gene Archery Products). The arrow rest is located just above the shelf portion of the bow. Our testing has proven that this rest is very durable and provides excellent shooting characteristics. Note: If the flipper rest breaks after repeated shots, simply leave the rest back to its original horizontal position.

Braiding

Our single cam Genesis bow with a high strength, double braided main bow limb uses the air percentage. This braiding provides superior performance, ensuring that the maximum amount of the bow's stored energy is transferred to the arrow.

Arrow Guide and Cable Guard

The cable guide is the second component of the bowstring assembly. It is positioned at the side on the upper limb and helps control the side-to-side motion of the bow which is mounted on the lower limb.

The cable guard is the third component that joins the string cable loop between the cable guides of the bow side and out of the light part of the arrow.

Notching Point

Your bow is machined with a cable string notch. The arrow should be "notched" positioned on the string just below the rest.

WARNING: Make certain the arrow rest are at proper height and allow for one inch bow weight and draw weight gain and follow your arrow manufacturer's recommendations.
