

HIV Case study

1. Does a positive rapid HIV test mean that C.Q. definitely has HIV? If it is negative, does it mean she definitely does not have HIV?

A rapid HIV test detects antibodies against the HIV virus. Anyone who has a positive rapid HIV test result needs to have additional testing to confirm or rule out the diagnosis of HIV. False-positive results depend on the prevalence of HIV within a community and are higher in areas of lower HIV prevalence. False-positive results can occur in pregnant women and women who have had children, recently vaccinated individuals, injection drug users, people who have had malaria, and patients with lymphomas and other conditions. Because standard test results will not be positive for 2 – 8 weeks after exposure to the HIV virus, if the patient has been exposed to HIV within this period, the result might still be negative. Retesting would be recommended, particularly if the person is at risk for infection.

2. What counseling do you need to provide to C.Q.?

You need to explain the meaning of the rapid test result in simple terms, avoiding technical jargon. Emphasize the importance of having confirmatory testing and that you need to draw another blood sample. Go ahead and schedule a return visit for the confirmatory test results. Tell her that it is important she take precautions to avoid possibly transmitting the infection to others while awaiting results of confirmatory testing. A simple message to convey this information could be, "Your preliminary test result is positive, but we won't know for sure if you are infected with HIV until we get the results from your confirmatory test. In the meantime, you should take precautions to avoid transmitting the virus." Then review measures to decrease the risk of HIV transmission, including use of a condom with her partner during anal and vaginal intercourse.

3. C.Q.'s statement is based on three assumptions: (1) J. is HIV positive; (2) he intentionally withheld the information from her; and (3) he intentionally transmitted the HIV to her through unprotected sex. Based on your knowledge of HIV infection, how would you counsel C.Q.?

First, ask C.Q. whether she received a blood transfusion between 1978 and 1985; underwent dental work or surgery or sustained trauma within the past several years; used a needle to inject drugs or medications into her body (even once); got tattoos; or if she and her partner are currently using condoms during intercourse.

Suggest that C.Q. talk to J. about undergoing HIV testing; there is a possibility that J. is not infected or that he is unaware that he has the HIV infection. Have C.Q. make an appointment with an HIV specialist to talk about her disease and undergo further testing and workup.

4. In addition to offering alternative explanations and exploring options, what is your most important role at this time?

Provide emotional support and counseling. Encourage her to seek support from family and friends. Encourage her to seek support from a support group. Encourage her to seek support from a counselor.
