

PATTERNS OF CRUSTAL ACTIVITY

Patterns of Crustal Activity Lab

Introduction: Earth's outer shell, called the lithosphere, is broken into big and small pieces that float on a semi-fluid layer beneath them called the asthenosphere. These pieces are always moving, and where they interact with each other, we see interesting geological activity like earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and mountain formation. In this lab, you'll explore how these events are not random but follow specific patterns. By looking at where earthquakes happen, scientists can find plate boundaries and understand how these plates move. You'll use historical data and current observations on seismic and volcanic activity to see how these processes work. This will help you understand the exciting and ever-changing geology of our planet.

Objective: In this lab, you will explore how different types of crustal activities are related to specific locations. You'll plot where earthquakes happen most often, analyze their depths, and identify other geological events that seem to be linked to these earthquake zones.

Vocabulary:

- Lithosphere
- Asthenosphere

Pre-lab Questions:

Using your world maps, describe the locations of earthquakes, volcanoes, and mountains. Are these occurrences randomly distributed or do they follow a specific pattern?

Which country of North and South America has the greatest amount of earthquakes, and what is significant about this?

Which ocean has the greatest amount of earthquakes, volcanoes, and mountains?

Using your world maps, what is the probability of either an earthquake or volcano occurring in your region? Explain why.

What "world-wide crustal activity" and the "tectonic plates" maps in your textbook show patterns of crustal activity compared to the locations of the plate boundaries?
