Framing the Challenge of Urban Flooding in the United States National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Policy and Global Affairs, Program on Risk, Resilience, and Extreme Events, Committee on Urban Flooding in the United States, 2019-03-29 Flooding is the natural hazard with the greatest economic and social impact in the United States and these impacts are becoming more severe over time Catastrophic flooding from recent hurricanes including Superstorm Sandy in New York 2012 and Hurricane Harvey in Houston 2017 caused billions of dollars in property damage adversely affected millions of people and damaged the economic well being of major metropolitan areas Flooding takes a heavy toll even in years without a named storm or event Major freshwater flood events from 2004 to 2014 cost an average of 9 billion in direct damage and 71 lives annually These figures do not include the cumulative costs of frequent small floods which can be similar to those of infrequent extreme floods Framing the Challenge of Urban Flooding in the United States contributes to existing knowledge by examining real world examples in specific metropolitan areas This report identifies commonalities and variances among the case study metropolitan areas in terms of causes adverse impacts unexpected problems in recovery or effective mitigation strategies as well as key themes of urban flooding It also relates as appropriate causes and actions of urban flooding to existing federal resources or policies The Case against Death Ingemar Patrick Linden, 2022-02-01 A philosopher refutes our culturally embedded acceptance of death arguing instead for the desirability of anti aging science and radical life extension Ingemar Patrick Linden s central claim is that death is evil In this first comprehensive refutation of the most common arguments in favor of human mortality he writes passionately in favor of antiaging science and radical life extension We may be on the cusp of a new human condition where scientists seek to break through the arbitrarily set age limit of human existence to address aging as an illness that can be cured The book however is not about the science and technology of life extension but whether we should want more life For Linden the answer is a loud and clear yes The acceptance of death is deeply embedded in our culture Linden examines the views of major philosophical voices of the past whom he calls death s ardent advocates These include the Buddha Socrates Plato Lucretius and Montaigne All have taught what he calls the Wise View namely that we should not fear death After setting out his case against death Linden systematically examines each of the accepted arguments for death that aging and death are natural that death is harmless that life is overrated that living longer would be boring and that death saves us from overpopulation He concludes with a dialogue concerning the badness of human mortality Though Linden acknowledges that The Case Against Death is a negative polemic he also defends it as optimistic in that the badness of death is a function of the goodness of life Social Justice and Education in the 21st Century Willie Pearson Jr., Vijay Reddy, 2021-04-10 The world is not an equal place There are high and low income countries and high and low income households For each group there are differential educational opportunities leading to differential educational outcomes and differential labor market opportunities This pattern often reproduces the privileges and inequalities of groups in a society This book explores this differentiation in education from a social justice lens Comparing the United States and South Africa this book analyzes each country s developmental thinking on education from human capital and human rights approaches in both primary and higher education The enclosed contributions draw from different disciplines including legal studies
