Recommendations Regarding Computers in High School Education Conference Board of the Mathematical Sciences. Committee on Computer Education, 1972 Informatics Education - Supporting Computational Thinking Roland Mittermeir, Maciej M. Syslo, 2008-06-27 Informatics Education Supporting Computational Thinking contains papers presented at the Third International Conference on Informatics in Secondary Schools Evolution and Perspective ISSEP 2008 held in July 2008 in Torun Poland As with the proceedings of the two previous ISSEP conferences 2005 in Klagfurt Austria and 2006 in Vilnius Lithuania the papers presented in this volume address issues of informatics education transcending national boundaries and the fore transcending differences in the various national legislation and organization of the educational system Observing these issues one might notice a trend The proceedings of the First ISSEP were termed From Computer Literacy to Informatics Fundamentals 1 There broad room was given to general education in ICT The ECDL the European Computer Driving License propagated since the late 1990s had pe treated school at this time already on a broad scale and teachers parents as well as pupils were rather happy with this situation Teachers had material that had a clear scope was relatively easy to teach and especially easy to examine Parents had the assurance that their children learn modern and relevant stuff and for kids the c puter was sufficiently modern so that anything that had to do with computers was considered to be attractive. Moreover, the difficulties of programming during the early days of informatics education in school seemed no longer relevant. Some colleagues had a more distant vision though.

Guide to Teaching Computer Science Orit Hazzan, Noa Ragonis, Tami Lapidot, 2020-08-05. This concise yet thorough textbook presents an active learning model for the teaching of computer science. Offering both a conceptual framework and detailed implementation guidelines, the work is designed to support a Methods of Teaching Computer Science (MTCS) course but may be applied to the teaching of any area of computer science at any level from elementary school to university. This text is not limited to any specific curriculum or programming language but instead suggests various options for lesson and syllabus organization. Fully updated and revised, the third edition features more than 40 new activities, bringing the total to more than 150, together with new chapters on computational thinking, data science, and soft concepts and soft skills. This edition also introduces new conceptual frameworks for teaching, such as the MERGE model, and new formats for the professional development of computer science educators. Topics and features include an extensive set of activities to further support the pedagogical principles outlined in each chapter, discusses educational approaches to computational thinking, how to address soft concepts and skills in a MTCS course, and the pedagogy of data science. NEW focuses on teaching methods, lab-based teaching and research in computer science education, as well as on problem-solving strategies, examines how to recognize and address learners' misconceptions, and the different types of questions teachers can use to vary their teaching methods. Provides coverage of assessment, teaching planning, and designing a MTCS course, reviews high school teacher preparation programs, and how prospective teachers can gain experience in teaching computer science. This easy-to-follow textbook and teaching guide will prove invaluable to computer science educators within all frameworks, including university instructors and high school teachers, as well as to instructors of computer science teacher preparation programs.

Classroom Computers and Programming Languages T. E. Hull, Richard Craig Holt, 1975. Stuck in the Shallow End Jane Margolis, 2008-08-15. The number of African Americans and Latinos receiving undergraduate and advanced degrees in computer science is disproportionately low according to recent surveys. And relatively few African American and Latino high school students receive the kind of institutional encouragement, educational opportunities, and preparation needed for them to choose computer science as a field of study and profession. In Stuck in the Shallow End, Jane Margolis looks at the daily experiences of students and teachers in three Los Angeles public high schools: an overcrowded urban high school, a math and science magnet school, and a well-funded school in an affluent neighborhood. She finds an insidious virtual segregation that maintains inequality Two of the three schools studied offer only low level how to keyboarding cutting and pasting introductory computing classes The third and wealthiest school offers advanced courses but very few students of color enroll in them The race gap in computer science Margolis finds is one example of the way students of color are denied a wide range of occupational and educational futures Margolis traces the interplay of school structures such factors as course offerings and student to counselor ratios and belief systems including teachers assumptions about their students and students assumptions about themselves Stuck in the Shallow End is a story of how inequality is reproduced in America and how students and teachers given the necessary tools can change the system
