Highways Design Guide:

A Guide for Achieving Flexibility in Highway Design, 2004 Context sensitive solutions CSS reflect the need to consider highway projects as more than just transportation facilities Depending on how highway projects are integrated into the community they can have far reaching impacts beyond their traffic or transportation function CSS is a comprehensive process that brings stakeholders together in a positive proactive environment to develop projects that not only meet transportation needs but also improve or enhance the community Achieving a flexible context sensitive design solution requires designers to fully understand the reasons behind the processes design values and design procedures that are used This AASHTO Guide shows highway designers how to think flexibly how to recognize the many choices and options they have and how to arrive at the best solution for the particular situation or context It also strives to emphasize that flexible design does not necessarily entail a fundamentally new design process but that it can be integrated into the existing transportation culture This publication represents a major step toward institutionalizing CSS into state transportation departments and other agencies charged with transportation project development Roadside Design Guide, 1996-01-01 This document presents a synthesis of current information and operating practices related to roadside safety and is developed in metric units The roadside is defined as that area beyond the traveled way driving lanes and the shoulder if any of the roadway itself The focus of this guide is on safety treatments that minimize the likelihood of serious injuries when a driver runs off the road This guide replaces the 1989 AASHTO Roadside Design Guide Road Design Manual Minnesota. Department of Highways, 1961 Highway Noise; a Design Guide for Highway Engineers Bolt, Beranek, and Newman, Bolt, Beranek, and Newman, inc, 1971 Various methods of assessing noise loudness and noise annoyance are reviewed and explained sources types and intensities of traffic noise are noted typical means of abatement and attenuation are described design criteria for various land uses ranging from low density to industrial are suggested and compared with the results of previous BBN and British systems for predicting annoyance and complaint and a design guide for predicting traffic noise capable of being programmed for batch and on line computer applications is presented in form suitable for use as a working tool A flow diagram describes the interrelationships of elements in the traffic noise prediction methodology and each element is discussed in detail in the text The text is presented on a tape recording that takes the listener through a series of traffic situations with such variables as traffic distance flow velocity distance outdoors and indoors and presence or absence of absorbers and attenuators Highway design, 1975 Highway Design Manual California.
