

Global Health

Global health involves the health problems of the citizens across the world. It is concerned about the problems similar to diseases such as infection or insect-borne which has a possibility to spread from one nation to another nation. Global health endeavors to tackle health problems that can be dealt with cooperative measures and solutions which require initiative from different countries. As health problems spread and affect the population globally, thus it can be controlled by conducting different programs related to health. It is essential for every country to participate in these programs as they can help a country to prevent diseases before spreading. The support and initiative from every country is beneficial as it evaluates the crises of health care and then takes a precautionary measure for diseases to stop them from spreading globally (Global Health Initiative, 2011).

It can also be said that the problem related to health go beyond the boundary of a country and extend up to another country which has economic as well as political impact.

In this context, this paper intends to identify the role of philanthropy work such as the role played by Bill Gates through his benevolent activities in health related initiatives. The paper also intends to identify role of such initiatives in the context of existing WHO policy priorities.
