Connect Some people think a complicated answer is better than a simple one. If they have a head cold, for instance, they may use all sorts of pills, syrups, and sprays, when they simply need rest, water, and warm chicken soup. In the early 1900s, most scientists thought DNA’s structure was too repetitive for it to be the genetic material. Proteins, which are more variable in structure, appeared to be a better candidate. Starting in the 1920s, experiments provided data that did not support this idea. By the 1950s, sufficient evidence showed that DNA—the same molecule that codes for GFP in the glowing mouse—carries genetic information.

MAIN IDEA

Griffith finds a “transforming principle.”

In 1928 the British microbiologist Frederick Griffith was investigating two forms of the bacterium that causes pneumonia. One form is surrounded by a coating made of sugar molecules. Griffith called these bacteria the S form because colonies of them look smooth. The second form of bacteria do not have a smooth coating and are called the R, or rough, form. As you can see in FIGURE 8.1, when Griffith injected the two types of bacteria into mice, only the S type killed the mice. When the S bacteria were killed with heat, the mice were unaffected. Therefore, only live S bacteria would cause the mice to die.

TAKING NOTES

Make a table to keep track of the experiments discussed in this section and how they contributed to our understanding of DNA.

| Experiment | Results |
|-----------------|---|
| Griffith’s mice | A transformable material changed harmless bacteria into disease-causing bacteria. |

The S form of the bacterium is deadly; the R form is not.

National Ethical Guidelines for Health Research, 2011, 2011 Manual for Clinical Trials Nursing Angela D. Klimaszewski, 2000 Nutritional Oncology George L. Blackburn, Vay Liang W. Go, John Milner, 2011-05-02

Nutritional oncology is an increasingly active interdisciplinary field where cancer is investigated as both a systemic and local disease originating with the changes in the genome and progressing through a multi-step process which may be influenced at many points in its natural history by nutritional factors that could impact the prevention of cancer the quality of life of cancer patients and the risk of cancer recurrence in the rapidly increasing population of cancer survivors. Since the first edition of this book was published in 1999 the idea that there is a single gene pathway or single drug will provide a cure for cancer has given way to the general view that dietary environmental factors impact the progression of genetic and cellular changes in common forms of cancer. This broad concept can now be investigated within a basic and clinical research context for specific types of cancer. This book attempts to cover the current available knowledge in this new field of nutritional oncology written by invited experts. This book attempts to provide not only the theoretical and research basis for nutritional oncology but will offer the medical oncologist and other members of multidisciplinary groups treating cancer patients practical information on nutrition assessment and nutritional regimens including micronutrient and phytochemical supplementation. The editors hope that this volume will stimulate increased research education and patient application of the principles of nutritional oncology.

NEW TO THIS EDITION Covers hot new topics of nutrigenomics and nutrigenetics in cancer cell growth. Includes new chapters on metabolic networks in cancer cell growth nutrigenetics and nutrigenomics. Presents substantially revised chapters on breast cancer and nutrition prostate cancer and nutrition and colon cancer and nutrition.
