Learning Plan: Teaching Polina/Dragon/Another Character

Getting Ready

This unit involves writing adapted and original fairy tales. These plans have students independently adapting either "Little Red Riding Hood" or "The Three Billy Goats Gruff." As a whole class, they will be adapting "Cinderella." The master story-tale adaptation will be "Polina Cinder" by Daphne Cole. Each day should be spent working on the whole class fairy tale adaptation, Cinderella, and then on individual adaptations of Little Red Riding Hood or The Three Billy Goats Gruff.

Teacher should be sure to read Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, and The Three Billy Goats Gruff aloud to students several times. It's suggested that they hear these stories read by multiple voices (CD, video, etc.) Let students know that as readers and writers, they need to know that when adapting fairy tales, the writer is attempting to improve on the writer's original story, to make a character less stereotyped, to include an different setting, to present gender, to less social factors, another to alter the moral of the story.

Students should read, analyze, and reread Little Red Riding Hood and The Three Billy Goats Gruff. They need to notice the qualities in fairy tale writing so they can consider which parts of the original tale they will be adapting.
