- "candidates who simply copy large chunks from the Data File and ignore issues relating to style and grammar will receive a low score in this aspect" - HKCAA Candidates' Performance p.7
 - "to work on this aspect, candidates should be exposed to a wide variety of source texts. When practicing, they should learn also to identify the tone adopted and the language used for different purposes so that they can apply the same skills in their own writing." - HKCAA 2012 Candidates' Performance p.19
 - "They need to appreciate that, depending on the purpose of a writing task, the tone of a text can range from very chatty to very formal with many possibilities in between including informal, polite and informative without being over-informal, and reasonably formal but not academic or journalistic in tone. To be able to manipulate the source texts effectively, candidates should work on their paraphrasing skills." - HKCAA 2012 Candidates' Performance p.19

Hkdse 2012 English Paper 3 Banswer:

Validating Technological Innovation David Coniam, Peter Falvey, 2016-04-02 This book discusses Hong Kong's use of onscreen marking (OSM) in public examinations. Given that Hong Kong leads the way in OSM innovation, this book has arisen from a recognised need to provide a comprehensive, coherent account of the findings of various separate but linked validation studies of onscreen public examinations in Hong Kong. The authors discuss their experience of the validation process, demonstrating how high-stakes innovation should be fully validated by a series of research studies in order to satisfy key stakeholders.

English Language Education and Assessment David Coniam, 2014-07-06 This volume gathers contributions in the closely linked fields of English language assessment and language education. The contributors from China and Hong Kong represent a mixture of established and new scholars. Areas covered in the language education section range across major developments in the redefining of Hong Kong's secondary and tertiary curricula, as well as the huge field of China's vocational education curriculum. Regarding assessment, the contributions reflect major changes in the marking of examinations in Hong Kong, whereby all examinations from 2012 onwards are marked onscreen, to quality control issues in the administration of China's College English Test, which is taken by over 10 million candidates every year.

Language Across the Curriculum & CLIL in English as an Additional Language (EAL) Contexts Angel M.Y. Lin, 2016-09-15 This book will be of interest to a broad readership, regardless of whether they have a background in sociolinguistics, functional linguistics, or genre theories. It presents an accessible meta-language, i.e. a language for talking about language that is workable and usable for teachers and researchers from both language and content backgrounds, thus facilitating collaboration across content and language subject panels. Chapters 1 to 3 lay the theoretical foundation of this common meta-language by critically reviewing, systematically presenting, and integrating key theoretical resources for teachers and researchers in this field. In turn, Chapters 4 to 7 focus on issues in pedagogy and assessment, and on school-based approaches to LAC and CLIL, drawing on both research studies and the experiences of front-line teachers and school administrators. Chapter 8 provides a critical and reflexive angle on the field by asking difficult questions regarding how LAC and CLIL are often situated in contexts characterized by inequality of access to the linguistic and cultural capitals, where the local languages of the students are usually neglected or viewed unfavourably in relation to the L2 in mainstream society, and where teachers are usually positioned as recipients of knowledge rather than makers of knowledge. In closing, Chapter 9 reviews the state of the art in the field and proposes directions for future inquiry.
