What Are Manual Updating Supplements?

A Manual Updating Supplement keeps your manual up-to-date. The supplement, which consists of a cover page and various replacement and/or additional pages for your manual, is shipped with the manual that it updates.

SELECTING THE PAGES TO BE ADDED

The following information helps you select the applicable pages to add supplement information to your manual.

Serial Prefix or Firmware Version

Check the serial prefix or firmware version information on the pages. If there are several versions of a page, select the version that applies to your instrument. For example, your instrument has a serial prefix of 2825A, and the supplement has two versions of one page: Serial Prefix 2731A and Above, and Serial Prefix 2829A and Above. In this example Serial Prefix 2731A and Above applies to your instrument.

Supplement Revision Date

If there are two copies of a page with the same page number and serial prefix, but different revision dates (e.g., Rev. 12JUL87 and Rev. 28AUG87), select the page with the latest revision date.

If there is an All Serials version of a particular piece of information on a page and a version identified by a serial prefix that applies to your instrument, select the version with the latest revision date on the bottom of the page. If there are two such pages with different changes, (bars at different places), use both (incorporate one with the other).

If the page already in your manual has a revision date that is later than the applicable page in the supplement, keep the page currently in your manual; the manual already may have been updated.
