

We've taken the five phases of event management—concept, planning (i.e., operational, strategic, tactical, contingency), implementation, event execution, and closing—and created a step by step planning guide that will walk you through the process of planning, executing, and closing your event.

1. Develop Your Event Goals and Objectives

Determine the Who (audience), What (content), When (timing), Where (location), and Why (purpose) of your event and connect it back to the purpose of how your event fits into the overall event strategy of your organization. Knowing your organization's key goals for hosting this event will ensure that every part of the event is optimized for success.

2. Organize Your Team

Identify one key event manager or event chair as well as individual chairpersons for subcommittees, such as:

- Venue management
  - Setup
  - Audiovisual
- Speakers
  - Special guest speakers
  - Plenary and breakout sessions (abstract management)
- Special events/entertainment
- Publicity
- Sponsors and exhibitors
- Volunteers

3. Establish Your Budget

Start out with your organization's overall event strategy and think about sponsorship, exhibitor, membership and registration revenue, and the associated expenses of holding your event. Align this event with your organization's brand and short/long-term objectives. Ensure your budget meets approval from your committee and organization.

Below are some of the categories you should consider in your budget.

- Venue rental
- Audiovisual
- Speaker fees
- Services and/or labor fees
- Event software
- Food and beverage
- Marketing print and media
- Décor
- Entertainment
- Transportation and accommodations

4. Create a Master Plan

Once you have developed your event goals and objectives, organized your team, and established your budget, it is time to start the real planning! Creating your event master plan will allow you to ensure every aspect remains on track, as well as make it easier to coordinate with committee members. The following list of items will provide ideas to build the core structure of your plan.

- Venue specifications
- Logistical requirements
  - Equipment
  - Audiovisual
  - Food & Beverage
  - Parking & Transportation
  - Insurance
  - Safety – know your venue and train your team on emergency procedures
- Speakers and presenters (invitations and/or call for abstracts)
- Publicity and promotion (e.g., online, events calendars, invitations, social media, signage)
- Registration (deadlines, fees, cancellations, refunds, marketplace, online/onsite setup, payment, onsite staffing)
- Partner and sponsorship management
- Volunteers
- Exhibitor management

A detailed timeline, no matter the size of the event, allows the event manager/event chair and committee to assign responsibilities and follow up on assignments. Accountability is crucial in the success of your event and will ensure that nothing is left undone or missed.

5. Plan for VIPs, Keynote, and Entertainment

Thorough planning of the content/entertainment is key to the event's success. Before setting your event dates, ensure your VIPs and/or entertainment are available. If your VIPs and/or entertainment are flexible with availability, proceed quickly with setting a date and moving forward with your venue reservation and contract, simultaneously contracting with the VIPs and/or entertainment.

6. Set the Date

The date might already be pre-set for your recurring event; however, if this is a new event, be sure to consider the following before setting your date.

- Allow 4-6 months to plan, if not more, depending on the event and the type of venue and lodging rooms needed.
- Consider potential date conflicts: statutory and religious holidays, as well as school breaks and campus/academic events.
- Ensure availability of key participants: hosts, speakers, presenters, entertainers, and VIP guests.

Being flexible with your dates can pay off big in better rates with hotel rooms and concessions. Plan 2-3 optional dates as part of your contingency plan.
