

SUBJECTS

The first step in the construction of a motor is the selection of the material for the cylinder and the piston. The material should be strong and durable, and should be able to withstand the high temperatures and pressures of the combustion process.

The next step is to design the cylinder and piston. The cylinder should be of a shape that will allow the piston to move up and down freely, and the piston should be of a shape that will fit snugly in the cylinder.

The third step is to machine the cylinder and piston. This is done by using a lathe and a mill. The cylinder is first machined to the correct diameter and length, and then the piston is machined to fit it.

The fourth step is to assemble the cylinder and piston. This is done by fitting the piston into the cylinder and securing it with a pin. The motor is then ready for use.
