

Food Safety & Sanitation

Basic Hygiene

Food Safety and bacteria

The way you handle any food product can affect both the safety and the quality of the food. You can have a severe impact on the customer experience and the sales of a restaurant through improper food handling.

What is food safety?

Effective procedures ensure McDonald's delivers food that is free of harmful bacteria, viruses, chemicals or foreign objects that could cause our customers to become sick.

How does food become unsafe?

Food can become unsafe to eat through contamination by:

- Harmful bacteria or viruses
- Chemicals (if cleaning products are improperly used)
- Foreign objects such as metal shavings, glass, etc.

Bacteria are microscopic organisms found everywhere – on food, in water, in the air, even in and on you. Not all bacteria are bad, but some can cause food-borne illness.

You eliminate bad bacteria when you do what is necessary to prevent bacteria from getting on food – such as washing your hands properly, wearing disposable gloves, using sanitized towels and handling food according to procedure.

Basic hygiene practices

Call in if you are ill. Don't come to work when you are sick, such as with a severe cold or you are suffering from diarrhea or vomiting. You are at a higher risk for transferring bacteria to food or others.

If you start to feel ill, tell your manager. Good health is important throughout your shift. You are at a higher risk for transferring bacteria to food or others.

Don't touch or prepare food if you have cuts or sores on your hands. Open cuts or sores can easily become infected with bacteria, which might then be transferred to food.

Adhesive strips

Any open cut, infected wounds or sores on hands or fingers must be covered with a McDonald's approved Blue Adhesive Strip and a glove.

When handling straws, ensure fingers are placed in the center of the straws and not at the ends.

Food temperature and storage Bacteria can grow on food or spoil food that isn't kept at the proper temperature. That's why it's important to follow procedures when cooking and storing food. Keep cold products cold and hot products hot to prevent or slow bacteria growth.

Keep fingernails trimmed. Long nails are difficult to keep clean with normal hand washing and can hold bacteria between the nail and the skin. This could be transferred to food when you touch it.

Keep long hair pulled up and restrained. Long hair that hangs loosely has the potential of getting into food during preparation. Though this is not a critical food safety issue, it can have an enormous impact on Customer Delight.
