

Gene Expression—Translation

How do cells synthesize polypeptides and convert them to functional proteins?

Why?

The message in your DNA of who you are and how your body works is carried out by cells through gene expression. In most cases this means synthesizing a specific protein to do a specific job. First, mRNA is transcribed from the DNA code. Then, the mRNA sequence is translated into a polypeptide sequence.

Mechanisms Coupling Steps in Gene Expression

Jeanne Lynn Hsu, 2008 Eukaryotic gene expression is a multi step process beginning with transcription of pre mRNA in the nucleus The pre mRNA undergoes several processing steps including 5 capping splicing and 3 end processing Finally spliced mRNA is exported to the cytoplasm for protein synthesis Although each of these steps requires distinct machineries they are physically and functionally coupled to one another This dissertation focuses on understanding the coupling among steps in gene expression from transcription to translation In Chapter 2 I describe the development of a mini nuclear extract method combined with RNA interference to determine the functions of specific proteins in the coupled RNAP II transcription splicing reaction The feasibility of this method was demonstrated by knocking down two model proteins the conserved splicing factors U1C and Slu7 My data indicate that the knockdown mini nuclear extract is a rapid and general in vitro strategy for determining the functions of specific proteins in gene expression as well as in other cellular processes In Chapter 3 I investigate the function of eIF4AIII a translation initiation like factor present in the nucleus My work showed that eIF4AIII is recruited to spliced mRNPs and is a component of the exon junction complex which is a protein complex recruited upstream of exon junctions during splicing In addition my work indicated that exon junction complexes are recruited to every exon junction present in the mRNA Finally eIF4AIII as well as a translation factor DDX3 co localizes with splicing factors in nuclear speckle domains Thus eIF4AIII and DDX3 may be recruited to mRNA during splicing in the nucleus and then function in translation related processes in the cytoplasm
