Grade Life Science Scope For November 2014:

Elementary Science Methods: An Assets-Based Approach to Teaching, Learning, and Advocacy, Grades K-6, Second Edition Lauren Madden, 2026-02-05 Teachers and parents often remark that children make the world's best scientists. Skillful science teachers understand how to tune in and connect to children's interests and observations to create engaging and effective lessons. This focus on the innate curiosity of children or humans overall is celebrated and used to justify and support efforts around STEM teaching and learning. Yet when we discuss elementary school teachers, we often hear many voices from inside and outside the classroom report that these teachers dislike, fear, and feel uncomfortable with science. This is exactly the opposite approach from what is universally recommended by science education scholars. The second edition of this textbook offers an up-to-date and practical guide to support excellent science teaching with even more ideas and tools to bring real-life authentic science into elementary classrooms. This text meets the immediate contextual needs of future and current elementary teachers by using an assets-based approach to science teaching, showing how to create inquiry-based lessons, differentiate instruction, and lesson design based on children's developmental ages and needs, and providing easy-to-use tools to advocate for scientific teaching and learning guided by the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS). Updates in this book include strategies for addressing complex and sometimes controversial scientific issues such as vaccine hesitancy and climate change to ensure teachers are well-prepared to support a scientifically literate populace.

Handbook for Education Professionals University of Bristol, School of Education, 2019-08-05 The guide is an essential resource for trainee teachers working towards the Teachers' Standards for qualified teacher status (QTS). It also helps newly qualified teachers (NQTs) and more experienced teachers have an understanding of and always act within the statutory frameworks which set out their professional duties and responsibilities. Teachers' Standards, Higher Level Teaching Assistants (HLTAs), and Teaching Assistants (TAs) working towards HLTA status will find the guide invaluable in developing knowledge of how other frameworks that support the development and well-being of children and young people impact upon their practice.

The Reproductive Body at Work Verena Namberger, 2019-04-11 The transnational industry surrounding assisted reproductive technology and regenerative medicine is based on the unacknowledged labour of gamete providers, surrogates, and research subjects, and benefits from low labour costs in enabling sectors such as logistics and transport. This finding calls for a comprehensive analysis of how the contemporary intersection of neoliberal capitalism and the life sciences, in short, the bioeconomy, capitalises on the body and its reproductive capacities. The Reproductive Body at Work uptakes this challenge as it explores the relations between value production, labour, and the body in one particular realm of the global bioeconomy: the South African bioeconomy of egg donation. It highlights different forms and dimensions of unacknowledged or precarious human labour that are constitutive for the procurement, brokering, and circulation of oocytes as valuable resources. The analysis illustrates that the respective organisation of value and labour renegotiate what the re productive body can do which status and roles it is ascribed which cultural and economic values it signifies and how it is experienced and enacted within a matrix of intersectional power relations A theoretically profound contribution to the interdisciplinary debate on New materialism The Reproductive Body at Work will appeal to students and researchers interested in fields such as gender studies medical anthropology cultural studies sociology political economy and science and technology studies Neuroinflammation and Behaviour Luba Sominsky,Adam K. Walker,Deborah M. Hodgson,2015-07-21 The brain and immune system are involved in an intricate network of bidirectional communication This relationship is vital for optimal physiological and psychological development and functioning but can also result in unwanted outcomes In particular this interaction plays an important role in cognition mood and behaviour Neuroinflammation is known to contribute to neurological and affective disorders including impaired learning and memory depressive anxiety and schizoaffective symptoms as well as pain The development of these conditions often occurs on the backdrop of pre existing physical illnesses which give rise to increased activation of the immune system such as cancer obesity infection and autoimmune disorders Similarly psychological states can alter regulation of the immune system This has been most extensively studied in the context of stress and immune function Understanding the underlying mechanisms that lead to the onset of inflammation induced neuropathology and stress induced immune suppression will contribute to the development of novel and effective treatment strategies for both the disease and its neurological side effects In this research topic we explored the relationship between the immune system and the brain throughout life We include both original research and review papers from animal clinical and molecular perspectives Teaching Science Through Inquiry-Based Instruction Terry Contant,Terry L.
