

Temperature

Endotherms: are 'warm-blooded' organisms that can use their internal metabolism to regulate their body temperature. Examples include birds and mammals.

Ectotherms: 'cold-blooded', rely on external sources of heat to maintain their internal body temperature e.g. the sun. Examples include reptiles, amphibians and fish

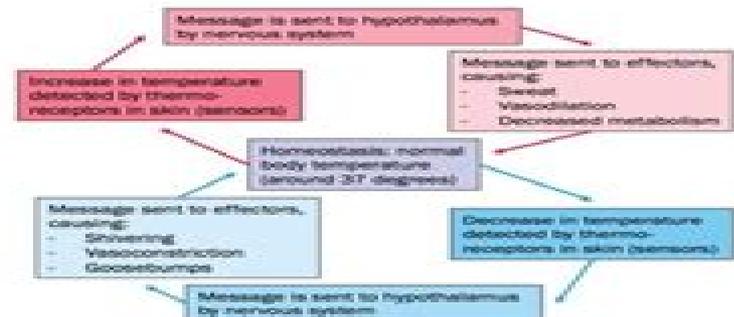

Responses of endotherms to

⇒ Heating

- Peripheral vasodilation –the blood vessels dilate, bringing blood closer to the surface of the skin allowing the heat to escape
- Sweating – increased evaporation from the skin cools the skin
- Decreased metabolic rate – less heat energy produced (more of a long-term response)
- Birds will lay their feathers flat against their body and open up their wings

⇒ Cooling

- Peripheral vasoconstriction – attempt to limit blood flow to periphery to conserve heat in the core
- Piloerection – small muscles at the base of hair follicles contract and raise hairs. This creates a layer of warm air against the skin. It is very effective in animals with thick fur and birds who can 'fluff their feathers' when cold
- Shivering – increased muscle activity generates heat energy

Glucose molecules are an important source of energy for cells. The oxidation of glucose during cellular respiration creates energy in the form of the ATP molecule

The two hormones responsible for glucose metabolism in the blood are:

- Insulin – reduces the levels of glucose in the blood by allowing glucose entry into cells
- Glucagon – increases the levels of glucose in the blood by triggering release from stores of glycogen in the liver and muscles

Hypothalamus

- A region in the lower central part of the brain, is an important control centre for the maintaining of homeostasis. It contains receptors for certain factors such as body temperature. Acts as a link between the nervous and endocrine systems, and sends messages to the effectors to carry out responses necessary for the maintenance of many homeostatic conditions
