

As the front wall retreats they should keep their eye on their block responsibility. All blocks should be turned to the outside, with the return back hitting up inside the wall.

Deep Returners will set their feet on the 5 yard line and on the hashes. The deep returner not receiving the ball will lead the back receiving the ball up and through the two up backs.

The front wall will rally on the center who sets the wall. The front wall should be within hands length of each other upon creating the wall.

The front wall must lean into and towards the kicker as if they were playing short in baseball this prevents the kicking team from on-siding the ball.
