

Fall Prevention Guidelines

Introduction

Falls are a significant concern for older adults, impacting their independence and quality of life. This guide provides comprehensive fall prevention strategies to help healthcare practitioners and caregivers reduce the risk of falls.

What are the 5 P's of fall prevention?

Predict

Identifying risk factors that contribute to falls in community-dwelling older adults through regular assessments.

Prevent

Implementing strategies such as exercise programs, medication reviews, and home modifications to mitigate fall risks.

Protect

Using assistive devices and educating older adults and their caregivers on fall prevention strategies to enhance safety.

Perform

Conducting regular risk assessments and monitoring to ensure that fall prevention measures are effective and up-to-date.

Partner

Collaborating with healthcare professionals, family members, and community resources to create a supportive network for fall prevention.

WHO guidelines for fall prevention

The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed comprehensive guidelines to reduce falls among older adults, focusing on person-centered approaches, recent e-health developments, and implementation in low-resource settings. Recommendations include advising all older adults on fall prevention, conducting risk assessments, and implementing personalized interventions.

Objectives

The primary objective of the WHO guidelines is to create evidence- and consensus-based fall prevention and management recommendations that are suitable for older adults globally. These guidelines are intended for use by healthcare and other professionals and focus on:
