Roland W. Scholz, 2011-07-21 In an era where humans affect virtually all of the earth's processes questions arise about whether we have sufficient knowledge of human environment interactions How can we sustain the Earth's ecosystems to prevent collapses and what roles should practitioners and scientists play in this process These are the issues central to the concept of environmental literacy This unique book provides a comprehensive review and analysis of environmental literacy within the context of environmental science and sustainable development Approaching the topic from multiple perspectives it explores the development of human understanding of the environment and human environment interactions in the fields of biology psychology sociology economics and industrial ecology The discussion emphasises the importance of knowledge integration and transdisciplinary processes as key strategies for understanding complex human environment systems HES In addition the author defines the HES framework as a template for investigating sustainably coupled human environment systems in the 21st century Encyclopedia of Case Study Research: L - Z Albert J. Mills, Gabrielle Durepos, Elden Wiebe, 2010 Evaluation Research Methods Elliot Stern, 2005 Canadian Journal of Urban Research, 2003 Four Comparative Case Studies of Socioecological Responsibility Douglas B. Johnson, 1996 The Reciprocal Influence of Parent-Subsidiary Relationships and Enterprise Systems Implementation Cucuk Budiyanto, 2018-01-09 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2016 in the subject Business economics Information Management grade 4 Swinburne University of Technology Melbourne Faculty of Business and Law course PhD Information Systems language English abstract This research focuses on the investigation of the reciprocal influence between the relationships of parent and subsidiary company of corporate groups and the implementation of the Enterprise Systems in subsidiary company Pertinent to the exploration is how power differential being transpired in the relationships between a holding and subsidiary company of corporate groups during the implementation of Enterprise Systems The literature on corporate groups indicates that the relationships between holding and subsidiary companies in the corporate groups are ingrained with power that is associated with the authority control and the ability to influence The aim of this research is to investigate the key aspects of the relationship between parent and subsidiary companies in corporate groups and their impacts on organisation s Enterprise Systems adoption and implementation This research also anticipated Enterprise Systems to be one aspect that drives the change in the relationship between parent and subsidiary company An interpretive paradigm is the assumed philosophical stance in this research The case study research method with embedded cases was chosen as the main research approach Two case studies with five embedded cases were explored The participating corporate groups were a privately owned corporate group and a state owned corporate group in Indonesia Semi structured interviews were used for data collection and qualitative content analysis technique was used in analysing the interview data The outcome of the investigation demonstrates three aspects in the relationships between a parent and subsidiary company of corporate groups during the implementation of Enterprise Systems that may be beneficiary for practitioners and researchers interested in the use of IS IT particularly in developing countries The holding company should consider the individual business requirements and the uniqueness of the subsidiary company in issuing directives for the implementation of Enterprise Systems in subsidiary companies The second aspect underlines the importance of the holding company to provide strategic directives to achieve the corporate group vision while facilitating and or enabling the achievement of the subsidiary s own business objectives The third emphasises on the importance of the communication between corporate group members particularly in the design and implementation of the appropriate Enterprise Systems      Applications of Case Study Research Robert K. Yin,1993-05-25

This volume provides extensive applications of actual case study research as well as discussions of how case study research can be applied to broad areas of inquiry Each of the applications is designed to help readers identify solutions to problems encountered when doing case study research The book is organized in three parts Part I shows how to integrate theoretical concerns into exploratory case studies descriptive case studies or causal case studies and shows how theory can shape the case selection process Part II provides examples from education and management information systems covering important steps in case study research such as how to select the units of analysis how to define the data collections needs and how to establish rival hypotheses Finally Part III examines the use of case studies as an evaluative tool including distinctions among different qualitative research strategies and evaluating highly complex interventions      The Perceived Effectiveness of Assessment Centers for Successful and Unsuccessful Participants for the Selection of Team Leaders in an Indian Call Center Nidhi Dhanju,2007      The Structure of Technological Revolutions Michael A.
