Read the passage carefully before answering the questions that follow.

The Hydrologic Cycle is a Natural Process

The hydrologic cycle is a continuous process that moves water around the planet. It is a natural process that is essential for life on Earth. The cycle is driven by the sun, which provides the energy that causes water to evaporate from the surface of the ocean, lakes, and rivers. This water vapor then rises into the atmosphere, where it cools and condenses into clouds. When the clouds become heavy enough, they release the water as precipitation in the form of rain or snow. This water then falls to the ground, where it can infiltrate the soil and become groundwater, or it can flow over the surface of the land and into bodies of water. The cycle is a continuous process that is essential for life on Earth.
