

problems. Change of these systems affects the workgroup.

- Enterprise – The employee benefits administration system is used by virtually all members of the university in some way. Use is formalized and strict procedures are needed. There should be very little data duplication and difficult to change.
- Inter-enterprise – The systems used by university food service operations to order supplies for the university food service facilities have many users across multiple organizations. Problems and problem resolution affect multiple organizations. It's difficult to change; coordination amongst independent organizations is required.

(LO: 1, Learning Outcome: Describe the uses of enterprise systems and enterprise resource planning, AACSB: Analytic Skills)

2. In your answer to question 1, explain how the three workgroup information systems create information silos. Describe the kinds of problems that those silos are likely to cause. Use Figure 7-5 as a guide.

When financial aid / scholarship information systems are developed to serve the needs of a specific, small group of users, each system will develop with particular data and procedures pertinent to each group. Academic departments will create systems for their needs; athletic departments will create systems for their needs, the colleges will develop systems for their needs, and on and on. These systems are definitely information silos.

There is no question that these various financial aid / scholarship systems have significant amounts of data duplication. As a result, data inconsistency is a real concern. Disjointed processes are very likely because each academic department, athletic program, and college awards its own scholarships independently of university-level scholarships, and other types of financial aid may be encompassed in an entirely separate system. Information will be limited and will not be easily integrated. Decisions may be very isolated; for example, two colleges might offer scholarships to a sought-after high school student and may not realize they are "competing" for the same student, leading to organizational inefficiency. (LO: 3, Learning Outcome: Describe the uses of enterprise systems and enterprise resource planning, AACSB: Analytic Skills)

3. Using your answer to question 2, describe an enterprise information system that will eliminate the silos. Would the implementation of your system require process reengineering? Explain why or why not.

A comprehensive scholarship and financial aid system could be created that would utilize a database of shared resources. Academic department, athletic programs, and colleges would use the system to award their scholarships. At the university level, scholarships, grants, loans, work-study awards would be awarded and administered. Because of the shared database, data about students is no longer duplicated in many places and is much more accessible and accurate. I don't believe that process-reengineering would be necessary in this case, but all users of the system will have to
