

FOREWORD

White Paper is a title derived from the parliamentary traditions of established democracies where the term is used for explaining the government's intentions or a policy on a subject. However, in our context, white paper on the budget is an on technical description of the salient features of budget. It is an endeavor to give meanings and substance to the figures in the budget. It attempts to summarize and unfold the mysteries hidden under budgetary classifications besides explaining the rationale for various provisions in the budget estimates. It is hoped that the insight provided by this document will enable the reader to formulate an informed and independent opinion about the intent, benefits and accuracy of various projections in the budget estimates.

The Government budgeting is based on the principle of equitable distribution of resources among its citizens through the tools of various fiscal measures. Government first outlines its expenditure programmes and then follows planning for revenue generation. It is a well set rule in Public Finance that an increase in expenditure at a constant tax rate or a decrease in the tax rate at no change in expenditures will always lead to budget deficits. In case of a reverse scenario, a surplus budget will appear, while, balance budget is an equilibrium between receipts and expenditures. The need for any one of these three options depends upon the overall economy of the country or on the will of the government. A benevolent government always chooses the option which maximizes the welfare of the common man. Thus, it raises the issue of government intervention through reallocation of resources that generally intends to focus on equitable distribution of the available resource.

The White Paper for 2013-2014 portrays a comprehensive picture of the Balochistan Government's finances. Almost, all major areas have been covered. However, special attention has been given to current revenue receipts and expenditures, capital receipts and expenditures, development budget, public accounts, local government finances and debt management. This document provides an insight on various financial issues of the Balochistan Government for policy makers, researchers, economists and others.

In the preparation of this document the valuable assistance of officers and officials of the Finance Department cannot be ignored. Specially, the services of Mr. Noor Ul Haq Baloch who is the main author and compiler of this document are acknowledged. Their concerted efforts and commitment of all enabled us to publish this document.
