What is a HEPA Filter?

(and other common Questions about HEPA Filters)

We see a lot of "Garbage", "Junk Science" and some of the most FALSE statements used to sell products other than HEPA filters on the internet. These un-educated sellers are trying to make Allergy and Asthma sufferers, and other consumers, think that HEPA filters are no good. To quote some incorrect and false phrases we have seen: "HEPA filters are not effective.", "Air filters don't work very well", "HEPA and Activated Carbon Filters don't work" . AND one of the most FALSE STATEMENTS MADE TO MAKE A BUCK: "Ozone is much more effective than HEPA filters. HEPA Filters only create a breeding ground for pathogens, such as molds and bacteria." ALL of the above statements are FALSE!

You should notice that when you see these highly un-true and false statements it is usually from ionic type or ionizing ozone air purifier sellers or dealers and that is all they sell. They are simply trying to scare you and mis-lead you into thinking that HEPA filters can not filter the air. These are mis-leading and unethical sales tactics that are used simply to sell their ozone products.

INDISPUTABLE FACTS: Ozone is a lung irritant that is emitted from ionic air cleaners, ozone air purifiers, UV below 240 nm, and many electronic air cleaners. Even small amounts of ozone are undesirable for allergy and asthma sufferers. The EPA, American Lung Assoc. and others do NOT recommend Ozone usage be used in occupied spaces such as homes and offices. While ozone is a method for reducing mild odors in non-occupied areas it DOES NOT remove airborne particles such as Dust, Dander and Pollen, it also DOES NOT kill mold or kill dust mites! AND, these sellers have NO VERIFIABLE third party laboratory test proof of the Claims they make. They also have no reputable health organisations that will support or recommend their product. CLICK HERE TO SEE A RECENT EVALUATION ON OZONE AIR PURIFIER SAFETY!

Consumer Reports Magazine in the May 2005 issue found that ionic and ionizing types of machines they tested were INEFFECTIVE in removing dust, cigarette smoke and pollen from the air and also found that they release potentially unhealthy levels of ozone... For the FULL article please see the May 2005 Consumers Report Magazine.

Allergy and Asthma sufferers need to know the true facts. This is why Allergists and Doctors ONLY recommend true HEPA air filtering and air cleaning systems over any other.

The following quote from the Allergy and Asthma Network sums it up perfectly:

"There is only one air cleaning method Approved and Required in circumstances where human life, health, or safety is dependent upon cleaning relatively large volumes of air. That method is used in patient isolators (boy-in-the-bubble), orthopedic operating rooms, hospital pharmacy preparation of I.V. and mixtures, biological safety cabinets for infectious disease research, to contain radioactive particles, and in pharmaceutical production facilities to ensure the purity of medications. That one method is TRUE HEPA filtration." - Allergy and Asthma Network - Mothers of Asthmatics, Inc.

News: November 2001: Exposure to airborne indoor fungi in residential environments can be reduced through use of portable high efficiency particulate air HEPA filter and regular maintenance of filter material and carpets.

Cedric Cheong of Murdoch University in Australia presented this new research at a IAQ 2001 conference.

"Our study showed a 70 percent reduction in airborne indoor fungal levels and a 38 percent reduction in particulate matter in homes fitted with portable HEPA filtration units." In Cheong's paper entitled The Use of HEPA Filters to Control Airborne Indoor Fungi, Cheong stated: "These results show that the operation of portable HEPA filtration units achieve effective outcomes in reducing levels of airborne indoor fungi. Outdoor sources remain the main contributor to indoor sources of fungi."

The study involved asthmatic children between the ages of 6 and 11. Portable HEPA air cleaners were placed in the children's bedrooms for 15 weeks. He added that the ongoing study results are being documented by a physician, not self-reported. In one of the 15 homes being studied, a HEPA air filter has decreased asthma symptoms and medication of an asthmatic child.
