TERM 1 GEOGRAPHY
MAPS AND GLOBES

1. MAPS AND ATLASES

Definitions:

Globe: A round model of the Earth.

Atlas: A book of maps.

Satellite Images: Pictures of world taken from space.

Introduction:

Maps and globes help us to see where we are in the world. Using maps has always been an important factor in the lives of human beings but, through the development of digital tools, maps are becoming more common-place, more detailed and more easily accessible. Applications such as Google Earth, Google Maps and car navigation systems are being used more often. In this section, you should learn the basics of how to use a map or atlas properly – this is a skill that will benefit you for the rest of your life.

Globes accurately show us, in a smaller version, the correct position of the continents on Earth. Earth is one of eight planets in our solar system and it is the third planet from the sun.

There are many different types of atlases. A world atlas contains map of different places in the world. A street atlas contains maps of streets in a settlement (city, town, village, etc.). A road atlas focuses on roads and routes between settlements. You will learn to use latitude and longitude to locate places on maps using the index in world atlas.

Satellite images can help to forecast the weather, to make maps, to show damage caused by natural disasters and to examine how land is used.

1.1 LATITUDE AND LONGITUDE – DEGREES AND MINUTES

You should know from primary school that lines of latitude go around the world from east to west and that lines of longitude go around the world from north to south.

Lines of Latitude:

The Equator is the line of 0° latitude and is the starting point for measuring latitude. The latitude of the North Pole is 90° N and that of the South Pole is 90° S.

Each line of latitude between the Equator and the Poles run parallel to each other and has a value in degrees. The angle of each line of latitude is measured from an imaginary point in the centre of Earth (Figure 1).

Two other important lines of latitude which will be dealt with later is the Tropic of Cancer which lies at 23½° N and the Tropic of Capricorn which lies at 23½° S.
