

Chapter 4

Accumulating and Assigning Costs to Products

QUESTIONS

- 4-1 The cost of the raw materials entered into production is traced from the raw materials account to the work-in-process inventory account. The cost of manufacturing labor and overhead costs are assigned to production by adding them to the work-in-process inventory account. Overhead costs are assigned (or allocated or apportioned) as determined by the cost system. When manufacturing is completed, work is transferred to finished goods inventory, and costs are moved from the work-in-process inventory account to the finished goods inventory account. Finally, when goods are sold, their costs are moved from the finished goods inventory account to cost of goods sold.
- 4-2 Manufacturing organizations face greater challenges in product costing, especially the assignment of overhead costs, than would an service organization do. The latter also lacked all manufacturing costing activities. In an attempt to reduce the cost that products accumulate as they pass through successive operations during manufacturing, as described above in 4-1, in most organizations, goods are purchased earlier than manufactured; the cost of the goods purchased is added over an account that accumulates the cost of manufacturing necessary to the goods. Items such as various overhead costs such as labor, depreciation on the tools, lighting, and heating. The primary focus is on cost assignment to the production of particular items or departments. Therefore, most organizations like manufacturing organizations face the issue of how to allocate various overhead costs to themselves, for example, the cost of purchasing and selling products, or department costs.
- Service organizations that undertake major projects, such as in a construction, focus on determining the cost of a project. In such instances, the major direct cost, regardless how, is often a large proportion of the project's cost. The organization will often assign various overhead costs to determine project profitability.
