The Battle of Gettysburg

Name:

The Battle of Gettysburg

The Battle of Gettysburg was one of the most important battles of the American Civil War. It took place from July 1 to July 3, 1863, in the town of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Union forces were led by General George Meade, and Confederate forces were led by General Robert E. Lee.

The battle began when Confederate soldiers entered Gettysburg looking for supplies. They met Union soldiers, and a big fight broke out. For three days, the two armies fought hard across fields, hills, and farmland.

One of the most famous parts of the battle was Pickett's Charge, when Confederate soldiers tried to break through the Union line but were pushed back with heavy losses.

After three days, the Union army won the battle. It was a turning point in the war because it stopped General Lee's attempt to invade the North.

Today, Gettysburg is remembered as a place where many brave soldiers fought and as the site where President Abraham Lincoln later gave the famous Gettysburg Address.
