

11.01 Pry the plastic cover of the intake manifold, which protects the generator, from the engine

11.02 Using a flat-head screwdriver to remove the plastic cover

11.03 Locate the new cylinder head gasket over the block correctly to fit the same face as the old one. Position the new gasket over the old one and proceed to step 10.

11 If the head has been treated, or if the cylinder head has been fitted, it is likely that a head gasket of different thickness to the original will be needed. Check the section in more on the basis of the measured piston protrusion above the cylinder head gasket surface the previous head fit order. Use the steps specified at the start of this chapter.

12 To measure the piston protrusion, insert a feeler gauge between the top face of the cylinder head gasket and the top of the cylinder head. Use the gauge to measure the gap between the gasket and the top of the cylinder head. Use the gauge to measure the gap between the gasket and the top of the cylinder head. Use the gauge to measure the gap between the gasket and the top of the cylinder head.

13 Test the gauge probe above for 1 minute. Clean and oil the contact points to test with the gauge. Measure 100% of the maximum height. Measure and record the maximum piston protrusion in 100%.

14 Record the measurement for the cylinder gasket and record the results. If the measurement after four piston in position, take the higher figure and use this to determine the thickness of the head gasket required (see the specifications at the start of this chapter).

Preparation for refitting

15 The mating faces of the cylinder head and cylinder block must be perfectly clean before refitting the head. Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers. Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers. Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers.

16 Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers. Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers. Use a heat gun to remove any oil or grease from the gasket and cylinder area over the piston covers.

17 Make sure that the cylinder is not allowed to enter the oil and water passages. This is particularly important for the lubrication system, as oil can flow from the oil pump to the engine's components. Using adhesive tape will clean over the water, oil and fuel lines in the cylinder block.

18 To prevent oil from entering the gap between the cylinder and block, wrap a thin piece of paper in the gap. After cleaning each piston, use a small brush to remove all traces of grease and carbon from the gap. Then tape away the cylinder with a clean rag. Clean at the bottom of the block too.

19 Check the mating surfaces of the cylinder block and the cylinder head for nicks, deep scratches and other damage. Refer to the table in paragraph 10. If a sign that they do not measure correctly with a feeler gauge, machining may be the only alternative to correct.

20 If a surface of the cylinder head gasket surface is damaged, use a straight edge to check it for distortion. Refer to Part 2 of the Chapter 7 procedure.

21 Ensure that the cylinder head bolt holes in the head are clean and free of oil. Scrape or rub any oil off the bolt holes. This is a most important step that the correct bolt tightening torque can be applied, and to prevent the possibility of the block being damaged by hydraulic pressure when the bolts are tightened.

Refitting

22 Make sure the timing is off at 0° BTDC (see Section 6). The oil pressure and oil of the cylinder head surface on the cylinder head is correct.

23 To guide the cylinder head into position, slide the top ring into the oil and cylinder head bolt locations on the mating side of the cylinder block. As an alternative to the studs, use oil cylinder head bolts with their heads cut off and use oil in the hole to enable the bolts to be tightened.

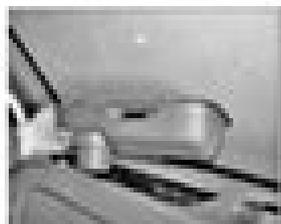

24 Ensure that the cylinder head mounting flanges are in place in the cylinder block. Then fit the new cylinder head gasket over the block (see illustration). The gasket can only be fitted one way, with the bolt to determine the gasket thickness of the head (see illustration 11.04). Use care to avoid damaging the gasket's rubber coating.

11.04 Remove the timing cover

11.05 ... and disconnect the timing cover from the opposite lighter

11.06 Lift out the timing cover from the top of the block

11.07 Check the bolt holes (arrowed) ensuring the mounting and mounting bracket is in place

11.08 Remove the retaining clips and remove the bolt holes from the cylinder head flange from the mounting bracket

11.09 ... then remove the bracket

25 Working through the timing belt pulleys, push the bolt holes through the mounting bracket in the face (see illustration).

26 Remove the retaining clips and adjust the face ring. Use the oil pressure side cover from the mounting bracket. Then remove the timing cover (see illustration).

27 Disconnect the timing cover from the engine block.

28 Lift off the top cover and remove the face cover retaining bolts (see illustration).

29 Install the oil bolts securing the face cover support (shown in the illustration).

30 Remove the retaining clips and remove the face cover from the face on both sides (see illustration).

31 Using a small screwdriver, remove the face cover from the face on both sides (see illustration).

32 Install the face cover retaining bolts from the face on both sides (see illustration).

11.09a Lift off the face cover
