

11.01 Pry the plastic cover of the intake manifold, which protects the generator, from the engine

11.02 Using a dial indicator to measure the piston protrusion

11.03 Locate the top cylinder head gasket over the down-camshaft to the same face as the old one. Position the new gasket over the old one and proceed to step 10.

11 If the head has been treated, or if the pistons have been fitted, it is likely that a head gasket of different thickness to the original will be needed. Check the section in Work on the base of the treated piston protrusion above the cylinder head gasket on the previous page for advice on the steps required at the start of this chapter.

12 To measure the piston protrusion, attach a dial indicator (D) to the top face of the cylinder head gasket using the top of the cylinder head and use the gauge probe to measure the protrusion at the start of the stroke.

13 Test the gauge probe above the 1st piston crown and set the indicator dial to zero and the piston protrusion. Note the maximum height, measure and record the maximum piston protrusion as T1.

14 Repeat the measurement for the remaining pistons and record the results.

15 If the measurements differ from piston to piston, take the higher figure and use this to determine the thickness of the head gasket required (see the Specifications at the start of this chapter).

Preparation for refitting

16 The mating faces of the cylinder head and cylinder block must be perfectly clean before refitting the head. Use a heat gun to remove varnish to remove all traces of gasket and carbon, and clean the piston crowns.

17 The new head gasket has rubber coated surfaces, which could be damaged from steel wire or debris left in a water jacket.

18 Use particular care when cleaning the piston crowns, as the soft aluminium alloy is easily damaged.

19 Make sure that the carbon is not allowed to enter the oil and water passages. This is particularly important for the lubrication system, as carbon could block the oil supply to the engine's components. Using adhesive tape will clean over the water, oil and fuel lines in the cylinder block.

20 To prevent carbon entering the gap between the pistons and bore, shave a little grease in the gap. After cleaning each piston, use a small brush to remove all traces of grease and carbon from the gap. Test tape along the cylinder with a clean rag. Clean at the bottom of the bore too.

21 Check the mating surfaces of the cylinder block and the cylinder head for nicks, deep scratches and other damage. Refer to the later Work on the block if a dip is found. This may be removed carefully with a file if necessary, machining may be the only alternative to dress.

22 If a passage of the cylinder head gasket surface is damaged, use a straight edge to check it for distortion. Refer to Part 2 of the Chapter 7 Work on.

23 Ensure that the cylinder head bolt holes in the waterways are clean and free of all sludge or scale as any of it in the bolt holes. This is most important in order that the correct seal tightening torque can be applied, and to prevent the possibility of the block being cracked by hydraulic pressure when the bolts are tightened.

Refitting

24 Make sure the timing is set as at 10.11 (11.02) see Section 6. The oil pressure and rate of oil consumption will suffer as the cylinder head is refitted.

25 To guide the cylinder head into position, shove the long studs into the end cylinder head bolt locations on the marked side of the cylinder block. As an alternative to the studs, use old cylinder head bolts with their heads cut off and use one in the ends to enable the block to be positioned.

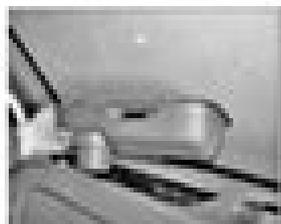

26 Ensure that the cylinder head mounting flanges are in place in the cylinder block. Refer to the new cylinder head gasket over the down-camshaft (see Work on the gasket on page 11476). The gasket can only be fitted one way, with the bolt to determine the gasket thickness at the front (see Work on the gasket on page 11476). You can't avoid damaging the gasket's rubber coating.

11.04 Remove the timing cover

11.05 ... and disconnect the timing belt from the opposite camshaft

11.06 Lift out the timing belt from the front of the block

11.07 Check the four bolts (two on each side) securing the timing belt to the mounting bracket in the front

11.08 Remove the retaining clips and shims that hold the timing belt and the additional only holder from the mounting bracket

11.09 ... then remove the bracket

27 Working through the timing belt supports and the four bolts securing the brackets, the mounting bracket in the front (see Work on the block).

28 Remove the retaining clips and shims that hold the timing belt in place. Remove the timing belt from the mounting bracket. Then remove the bracket (see Work on the block).

29 Disconnect the wiring connector from the power point.

30 Lift off the two covers and remove the front upper retaining bolts (see Work on the block).

31 Install the six bolts securing the front lower support (shown in the Work on the block).

32 Remove the retaining clips and remove the bracket covers from the front on both sides (see Work on the block).

33 Using a small screwdriver, remove the front covers from the front on both sides (see Work on the block).

34 Install the four outer mounting bolts from the front on both sides (see Work on the block).

11.06a Lift off the two covers

11.06b ... and remove the front upper retaining bolts

11.01 Tightening sequence for the cylinder head bolts

11.06c Check the oil bolts (two on each side) securing the timing belt to the front of the block

11.06d Remove the retaining clips and remove the bracket covers from the front on both sides

11.06e Using a small screwdriver, remove the bolt covers from the front of both sides
