

1 — Modes of Written Communication

You will be asked to write in a variety of situations for several uses, as explained in the next section. For all assignments, your audience, purpose, information, and organization will greatly affect your writing effectiveness.

Which form of communication would work best in this situation?

- a. Email
- b. Memo
- c. Text
- d. Physical media, such as

2 — Composing Effective Messages and Documents

You are in the military and have been asked to prepare a lengthy report for a group of politicians and other officials. It is critical that everything in the report be clearly understood by the audience so that the politicians' hearing would be well-informed and accurate. There are thousands of military assignments in the report that may not be familiar to your audience.

How should you handle this?

- a. Write with acronyms and jargon and explain them in the report
- b. Explain all of the acronyms of the report but not use all acronyms
- c. Explain a list of acronyms in the end of the report, as is common
- d. Define each acronym in the text when it is used in the report

3 — Structuring an Email Message or Memo

You are drafting a new organizational policy. In preparation to your department's meeting, it must be presented in a particular order. Which?

In the memo, presentation places the most-critical information where?

- a. In the closing
- b. In the opening
- c. In the middle
- d. In the end

All memos to leaders in organizations are urgent issues. The writer must write in a straightforward, to-the-point style for all members of the team. This format is particularly important when the
